At Seventh College, our vision is to transform society by equipping the next generation of scholars, leaders, and innovators with the tools to confront the challenges posed by our changing planet. Today’s verdict in the trial of Kyle Rittenhouse may cause anger, uncertainty, and grief. Racism, racial inequality, and white privilege are among the most pressing challenges we face in our society. We recognize this is a difficult time for students and our campus community, and we affirm the statement issued by the University.

As we work to process this verdict, the Seventh College team wants you to know you have resources and support. Listed below are several resources and community centers which may be helpful:

Office for Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion
Counseling and Psychological Services (CAPS)
Anti-Racism Resources

It is only as a community, acting together, with courage and compassion, that we will have the wisdom and strength to bring about lasting and meaningful change. Please take care of each other and yourself during this challenging time.

In Solidarity,

Seventh College
